DEDICATION

We, the Staff of 1934
dedicate this BLUESTOCKING

to

THE WOMEN OF THE MARY BALDWIN FACULTY

in acknowledgment of our sincere appreciation for the conception of Feminine Greatness which they have given us by their teachings, their example, and their friendship.

FOREWORD

In every soul
the spark of greatness lies. More often than not it flames unnoticed and unsung.
But at least once in every generation
a personality develops who displays greatness to a marked degree, though it may take form only in one characteristic or talent. This volume is built upon the theme of

GREAT WOMEN OF THE AGES

We can mention only a few of them here, and of necessity they must be exceptional women of renown who typified the spirit of their age and yet foreshadowed the future. It is hoped that in recognizing their attainments some of us may be inspired.

WORDS BY
KATHRINE SEE

Alma Mater

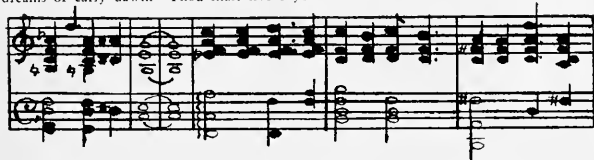

MUSIC BY
LILLIAN IRELAND

Thou wast born of dreams, Mary Baldwin, Mary Baldwin, woman's dreams of Thou wast built of dreams, Mary Baldwin, Mary Baldwin, dreams of faith, the love and true desire. Conqueror's dreams with passion's ardor glowing, caught from truth's dreams of early dawn. Thou shalt live beyond time's farthest limit. Dreams shall last undying pure white fire. Born to live, to perish never, to inspire to when walls of stone are gone. Born to live, to perish never, to inspire to high endeavor — to uphold that light forever, Mary Baldwin.

MRS. MARGARETT KABLE RUSSELL.

The Staff of the 1934 BLUESTOCKING honors Mrs. Margaret Kable Russell as the first woman to be a member of the BOARD OF TRUSTEES of Mary Baldwin College.

Mrs. Russell is an outstanding alumna, at present holding the position of Honorary President of the Mary Baldwin Alumnae Association, an organization which she served as President during the years 1926-1932.

A native of Staunton, Mrs. Russell attended Mary Baldwin Seminary during the sessions 1897-1902. She was the Editor-in-Chief of THE BLUESTOCKING in 1902, and graduated with high honors at the end of that session.

Finale

Four lovely years—a millionth part of time
A tiny span to be so full of things
And fill so many hearts with eager hope,
To come and vanish on such speedy wings.

Must we define what it has meant to us
And tear the bond apart to find the seams?
Perhaps not one could tell in clumsy words
The meaning of her own awakened dreams.

Too young to judge, we wonder what is best
We pause to lift a voice in fervent prayer
That we may choose the best to guide our lives
Nor ever stoop to what is only fair.

AGNES LATHAM.

Senior Class Will

We, the Class of 1934, of Mary Baldwin College in the city of Staunton and state of Virginia, being in sound mind and body, do hereby publish this, our last will and testament in the manner and form following, that is to say:

1. We hereby leave a sincere wish for the happiness and success of our sponsors, Dr. and Mrs. Grafton.

2. We hereby bequeath our colossal reserve and superb dignity to the Junior Class.

3. We hereby will and bequeath to the Contemporary Thought Class of 1935 our memoirs of Washington in the good old days.

4. We hereby will our dramatic ability to the incoming Freshman Class as we have certain reasons to think they will need it in tense moments.

5. We hereby will and bequeath our supreme sophistication to Misses Grace Sager and Anne Rudd.

6. We hereby donate certain individual characteristics which we wish to be carried on:

Jo Adams leaves her beauty spot to Julia Forsythe.

Rosalie Brown leaves her great love for science to Betty Arnold.

Connie Caldwell leaves her memoirs of the New York trip to Hattie Jayne and Middie Huffman, exclusively.

Christine Cottrell leaves her affinity for Massachusetts to Jean Hebbard.

Doris Coville and Julia Gooch leave their sense of humor to Isabella Spillman.

Jac Crinkley leaves her pink knitting to Jean Baldwin.

Grace Crowe leaves her unconsciousness to the most conscientious Freshman.

Kate Drake leaves her ability in Latin to Marion Sanner.

Kitty Drummond leaves her subtle sarcasm to Eleanor Miller.

Betty Keith Harrison leaves her early morning smile to Jane Shaler.

Louisa Heeth leaves her night life to Kewpie Huffman.

Anne Holman leaves the Y. W. to Bev Hoy.

Thelma Hulvey leaves her efficiency as a secretary to Benton Robinson.

Mary Larrick leaves her executive ability to Mary Bell Archer.

Agnes Latham leaves her Georgian accent to Florence Rosenstein.

Kay Little leaves her unfinished chemistry experiments unfinished.

Mary Lou McCutcheon leaves her "savoir faire" to Gin House.

Louise McDonald leaves her music ability to Helen Arthur.

Mildred Mawhinney leaves her light privilege to Winifred Woods.

Winnie Patterson leaves her feature stories to be censored.

Babe Smith leaves her winning ways to Rosa Phipps.

Bessie Stollenwerck leaves her determination to Virginia McLaurin.

Mary Borden Wallace and Evelyn Wood leave their nice traps to Raquel Fajardo and other mouse lovers.

Emily Timberlake leaves her journalistic ability to Helen Miller.

Frances Woolford leaves her alarm clock to Caroline Conlon.

Helen Waide leaves her sincerity to Ellen Douglass Bush.

Kitty Zimmerman leaves her reserve to Janet Lambert.

Martha Gray leaves her technique 'How I Got That Man' to Jane Jeffrey.

Jeanne-Renee Campana leaves her psychology arguments to Nancy Larrick.

Ruth Laue leaves her debating ability to Nancy Wallace.

In the witness whereof we subscribe our name this twenty-sixth day of February in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-four.

THE SENIOR CLASS.

"Seniors"

"It's the Last Round-Up" we thought as we returned to Mary Baldwin to begin our Senior year. Quite a different class from the one that entered these portals three long years before—a smaller and a wiser class, not exactly sadder but a bit more serious for we were beginning to feel the responsibilities and the dignity of being Seniors.

On October 4, Miss Mary Julia Baldwin's birthday, we received our caps and gowns and were formally recognized as Seniors at the Investiture Service. For the first time we sang our Senior Song; there were tears in the eyes of more than one of us as we came to the realization of the inevitable and not-too-distant end. That evening a formal dinner was held in the college dining-room in honor of the Seniors.

The Senior play, "The Women Have Their Way," a Spanish comedy in two acts, by the Quintus Brothers, was presented on the evening of December 12, under the direction of Miss Latimer. Great were the preparations for it and late into the night the actors practised.

The night before school let out for Christmas, the Seniors gave their annual party in the chapel for the servants. It was our last Christmas party here, and we found it hard to realize that we were actually giving it this year (instead of merely assisting some other class).

After a glorious vacation it was rather hard to buckle down to study for those last mid-term exams; but determination and some other things decided the question for us. The Seniors came through triumphant with more students on the honor lists than any other class in spite of the small number of members.

Dr. and Mrs. Grafton entertained the class in small groups by taking them to the movies; three more of our number were taken into the Mary Baldwin Honor Society, making five Senior members in all; our representative won third place in the posture contest; some of our members gained renown on the debating team. The Contemporary Thought Class, which included about two-thirds of the Seniors, enjoyed a wonderful trip to Washington in February.

We have memories of snow storms and sleigh-rides, nights of study and nights of play, concerts and entertainments by the Sophomore and Junior classes. So many things filled our busy days and nights that it is impossible even to touch upon them all.

Then came final exams and Commencement week, numerous entertainments in our honor—our last Class Day, and Baccalaureate sermon, and May Day, and finally Commencement. Singing the Senior Song for the last time; singing the Alma Mater for the last time as students! Everything seemed so final. And so, we may say, "Thus ended the four golden years."

Junior Epic

And so it was with backward glance
And tender sigh for old romance
That thirty Juniors came to school.
Soon well-accustomed to the rule
They plunged into that pleasant stream
Whose course toward their sea of dreams
Did twist and turn but ever nearer ran—
Swiftly, imperceptibly—
As only time and water can.

2.

As idly they did float along
On that September morn, a song Quite strange was heard. But well they knew
Freshmen green were by their elders ruled.
Right merrily they did console
Those little fools, so queerly robed.
(Workman's glove and dunce's cap, you know)
A tea—inviting every lass—
They gave for this, their sister class.
Next hockey took their interest.
Although no trophies won, their jest
Was gay, and spirit of the best.
With health in view and caution lest
They lose their own vivacity,
They started drinking milk, you see;
Dearly hoping that in basketball
Another time they would not fall.
Anne Rudd, a trophy for them won
In posture contest, so you con.

Gay social life, the way did pave.
The Freshmen them a banquet gave,
With banquet then, the Juniors too
To the staid Seniors bid adieu.
These Juniors were with many things Concerned. That year they chose their rings.

Some knit; some made the honors list;
Others on playing did insist.
And many in Memorial
Did live. Happy were they all.
And always with a guiding hand
Their sponsor led them past the sand.
To her is owed whate'er success.
Their love for her they here express.
THE BLUESTOCKING was their chief pet;
No secret will the Juniors let
You know until these pages, you
Unfold and see their art so true.

3.

With gentle sigh and backward glance
The Juniors turn to old romance.
A night in June, an evening star,
Each Junior ponders things that are.
The past and future call to her.
She'll now become a Senior.
The river rushes to the sea
Where teaming life demands the key
That she has made along the way.
One year remains. An age they say,
But it will pass. She knows how fast,
Swiftly, imperceptibly,
As only time and water can.

SOPHOMORES COMPEL TERRIFIED FRESHMEN TO UNDERGO INITIATION

Class Hockey Team Is Successful In Winning Annual Battle For Coveted Hockey Championship

CLASS ENTERTAINS SENIORS

STAUNTON, VIRGINIA. 1933-'34. The class of 1936 returned this fall with all the dignity of full-fledged sophomores. Although the enrollment dropped from that of last year, no class officials were lost, and several recruits were added from other colleges. As a matter of fact, sophomores returned in such large numbers that the traditional junior seats in the chapel had to be sacrificed for their occupancy, putting juniors on the other side. To heighten the feeling of maturity, each sophomore had one or perhaps two "little sisters" in the freshman class.

Class activities were started soon after the opening of the session with a freshman initiation which will always be remembered by the initiated. Dunce hats, wash dresses inside out and backwards, washrag bibs, farmers' gloves, one black stocking, marbles, and a pan of water, as the approved freshman costume, held full sway for two days. Under the leadership of their class president, Ora Ehmling, the Sophomores worked up an amusing program which culminated in a court trial. Harriet Jayne, as judge, meted out penalties for all misbehaviors, while the freshman theme song, "Looking Through the Knothole," was sung at intervals during the evening. After the freshmen passed through their period of trial, they were entertained and welcomed officially into Mary Baldwin college life by the sophomores.

When the hockey season opened, sophomores entered their own field of glory, battling their way through three class games to gain the title of school champions; four places on the varsity team were filled by sophomores. Golf and tennis were also participated in, with members of the class taking second place in the tournaments of both sports. One of the sensations of the fall season was Julia Forsythe's suit of long underwear, which saw faithful service on all cold days. Perhaps the fact that the class of '36 is sponsored by Miss Powell makes for the interest in sports which seems to be felt by practically the entire class.

A drive for the sale of Mary Baldwin plaques was conducted successfully and helped the class treasury a great deal. Almost every room now has at least one plaque as a souvenir of college.

Before Christmas a chapel program was put on by the class which consisted of a play in two acts called "There and Back." In addition to this bit of Thespian work, several sophomores were active in other dramatics and in debating. The distinction of claiming the presidents of both of these clubs goes to the sophomore class.

Following the Christmas holidays came the inevitable examinations, and with this trying time a period of mid-winter minor sports. Sophomores were again well represented, with one member of the class capturing the ping-pong championship. When grades were tabulated, it was found that two sophomores had attained the coveted high honors, while ten were included in the "Dean's List."

An event in the second semester that will always be remembered was the impossible English paper, a contrast of Shelley and Keats ("Sheats" and "Kelley" were better known to tongue-tied sophomores as they rummaged frantically in the library), which was the forerunner of a similar paper on Tennyson and Browning. Other second-semester bugbears were found in Bible parallel reading, indefinable calculus, and psychology true-and-falses.

Basketball brought a surprising number of sophomores to the Y. W. C. A. gym, where they won one encounter with the junior class. Spring sports also took a good bit of time, with enthusiastic participation in both major and minor athletics. The class of '36 was particularly anxious to defend their baseball title of last year and also to try for the class championship cup in athletics, which was won by last year's sophomores.

The outstanding event of the spring was the sophomore-senior banquet, at which the sophomores did their best to give the seniors a farewell good time. In May came the inevitable breaking-up for the summer. The class of '36 separated with the hope that most of its members would return in the fall to make another year of history.

Extracts From the Letters of an M. B. C. Freshman

SEPTEMBER 12.

Dear Jane,

I'm wretched. Why, oh why, was I born? And why, having been born, do I continue to exist? I have just watched the backs of my parents recede in the distance and I've never felt so terrible before in my whole life.

My roommate hasn't come yet, and when she does, I know she'll be horrid. Oh, dear, I feel so inferior

This is several hours later. Miss Pfohl (the dean) just took a group of us to the movies. It was fearfully sentimental, but it took my mind off of home and the crowd—and Jimmy, dear Jimmy—and—oh, heavens, there I go again. That warped spot is a tear, but I really don't feel quite so badly now. My roommate has just come and she is a dear,

SEPTEMBER 16.

I think I'm going to like it here. Classes have started and I'm beginning to feel a little less like a piece of exceedingly water-logged driftwood. The Juniors gave us a party last night and I must say they know how to go about it. Our big sisters, dressed as boys, acted as our escorts. I for one had an hilarious time. I found I couldn't feel sorry for myself and cry when in the throes of masticating ice cream sandwiches.

I can't say that I feel exactly collegiate yet, but I guess that's something you acquire after careful emulation of upper classmen. And speaking of upper classmen—they are as nice as they can be, but, oh, how insignificant I feel when I think of the things they know and I don't. However, I flatter myself that, though I am still very green, the shade is a trifle less violent and noticeable than it was a month ago.

SEPTEMBER 27.

Now I'm miserable again. Rat Week. In other words—Freshman Initiation. My dear, listen to this recital of sartorial horror: We are now wearing our dresses inside out, one black stocking, shoes laced with ribbon (very brightly colored), card board dunce caps, and garden gloves. We carefully nurse a pie tin of water in one hand and five amazingly elusive marbles in the other. And—we have to eat with our knives! Only fancy how horrid. Well, there is only one more day to go.

OCTOBER 27.

I am completely converted. I love it here! We are organized at last with officers and everything. Marjorie Abbey is president, Jane Willmore, vice-president, Sue Burr, secretary and Beatrice Wood is treasurer.

We really are beginning to feel important. The Juniors gave us a tea on the thirteenth and it certainly was a nice one. Here's to our sister class! We are going to reciprocate on March 23 by entertaining them. I only hope our efforts will be as successful as theirs.

Well, Jane, you'll never hear another groan from me. I am enjoying life hugely. I know now what is expected of me and praise Allah, I'll never be so green again. I'm free, white, and initiated—I'm a MARY BALDWIN GIRL!

The fiends' own weather ushered in the 1933 Hockey season. Wintry gusts slithered disconcertingly about the empurpled limbs of those on the field. There were, of course, students with more good sense than vanity who wore the mid-victorian type of—er—nether garments, and played in comparative comfort. However, in spite of the machinations of the weather, the games went on, finally resulting in the championship of the Sophomore team.

We bled sympathetically with each loser and rejoiced with the winners for, after all, a game is no game at all unless some one wins and some one else loses. There are many things we won't forget about those games, the greater part of them funny. Will you ever forget the violent scratching for suits that went on among the Juniors before a game, the frantic repairing of decayed elastic, the hasty improvisation of belts where-with to curb the airy voluminousness of the tunics? And will your faculties ever become so dim that you won't remember the red ski-pants which bounded up and down the field on the able legs of a couple of original Freshmen, or the sounds which issued from the mouth of the Juniors' captain that were meant as manly encouragement but which sounded oddly like a combination of snore, hiccough, and high blood pressure?

So with a lusty cheer for the winners and a horseshoe for luck to the losers, the season was closed after heartfelt, if unmusical, songs in the dining room.

After the inter-class hockey games were played off, the Athletic Council Committee chose an honorary hockey team made up of those girls who showed the most skill in playing and the best sportsmanship during the season.

From each class representatives who were interested in hockey were sent to the annual Virginia College Hockey Convention which was held at Westhampton College in Richmond, November the tenth and eleventh. They were as follows: Seniors, Frances Woolford, Catherine Zimmerman, Jacqueline Crinkley; Juniors, Marjorie Stuart, Helen Miller, Isabella Spillman; Sophomores, Janet Duthie, Julia Forsythe, Harriet Schofield; Freshmen, Bette Williams and Patty Jo Mahoney.

The whistle that started off the first basketball game of the season also started a most interesting set of matches, which were to result in the championship of the Seniors. The Freshman team represented an innovation in the line of forwards—namely—twins. Imagine the embarrassment of certain guards (c. g. Mary Borden Wallace) when they had to inquire of the twins themselves which one they had the honor to guard. We might mention in passing that we have never seen such miraculously long shots as these twins accomplished.

Winnie Love, the self-appointed Junior coach, bounded up and down the side lines with that caged lion effect and in the end was more exhausted that the team members themselves. There was, of course, the problem of what the long-haired members of the various teams were to do with this excess hirsute appendage. Grace Crowe, Anne Holman, and Harriet Schofield usually solved the difficulty by the simple expedient of braids. To determine in what direction the pigtails would go next and how long they would stay braided was a pastime which did not lack a certain fascination for the spectators. We are glad to say that the braids went where their owners went in almost every case. But not so, the caps of Jac Crinkley and Isabella Spillman.

After the official close of the season, a rousing match took place between the "McClungites" and the "Hill Topites." The costumes were weird and wonderful to behold. McClung appeared as big bad apaches and Hill Top as their antithesis in all the innocence of baby clothes.

A varsity basketball team is chosen each year by a committee appointed by the Athletic Council, and consisting of the referees and the sport leader who have served during that season. The students selected for the varsity are outstanding players and good sports in every sense of the word. This year the varsity basketball team lists three Seniors: Crowe, Woolford, and Crinkley; one Junior: Spillman; and two Freshman: Mahoney and Tucker.

Baseball

There is a saying in the Sport-World "that Spring has come when baseball practice starts." This proves true at Mary Baldwin for early in April you will see a group of girls walking to the Athletic Field with ball and bat ready to start practice for the one truly American major sport—baseball.

The second week in May concludes the baseball season. The first week of practice is given over to those who want to learn the game, the second week to selection of class teams and individual positions. With this completed, two weeks of heated practice games start, reaching their climax in the final week of inter-class games. On Field Day, the peak of the whole baseball season is reached in the championship game which is always played between the two winning class teams. Then excitement runs high for not only does it mean winning the silver championship cup, but often it determines which class shall receive the trophy given for the most points earned during the year in intra-mural sports.

There is a varsity team of nine players selected from the four class teams. Membership on the varsity is determined by skill, good sportsmanship, and teamwork and is recognized by individual awards distributed at the Athletic Banquet.

A great majority of the students participate in baseball for not only do they enjoy the recreation and exercise, but also it is a good way for them to show class spirit.

Track

In the spring months at Mary Baldwin, track is one of the major sports. Soon after the return from spring vacation in April, hurdles are set up, javelin and discus brought out, other apparatus put in place, and practices begin at the athletic field. Participation is open to the students in hurdling, shot-putting, javelin-throwing, broad-jumping, high-jumping, sprinting, and relay racing.

The crowning glory of the track season is Field Day, an event held early in May, with members of all four classes competing. For the spectators, too, it is very exciting and full of breathless moments—just before the high-jumper reaches the point of take-off, or just before the runner breaks the tape, only a few inches ahead of the second runner. Some of the outstanding girls in the 1933 Track Meet were Elizabeth Wilson, Joanna Adams, Isabella Spillman, and Harriet Schofield.

At the close of the season an honorary varsity is chosen by a committee of the Athletic Council from all the entrants in the Track Meet. Girls on the Varsity team receive special awards at the Athletic Banquet.

Minor Sports

The versatility of the Athletic Department is emphasized in the variety of Minor Sports offered in addition to the four Major Sports. In this list we must include natural dancing, tennis, archery, swimming, horse-back riding, walking, golf, bowling, and even ping-pong and billiards.

Competition in these sports is fostered by the Athletic Council, which sponsors semi-annual tournaments and later rewards the year's champions in each activity, by trophies presented at the annual Athletic Banquet.

Athletic Council Activities

The Athletic Association of Mary Baldwin Seminary was organized in 1919 for the purpose of stimulating an interest in sports, promoting school spirit, and giving every student an opportunity to take an active part in some form of athletics. At that time, feeling the desirability of a friendly rivalry, the physical director divided the school into two sides, naming them for the colors, White and Yellow. From each of the two groups, teams were chosen to play a series of matches during the season for basketball, baseball, golf, and hockey.

From this beginning the Athletic Association of Mary Baldwin College has grown until today it sponsors participation in practically every sport popular among women. Upon enrollment in the college every student automatically becomes a member of the Association. Initiation of the new girls into the organization takes place in September at the first meeting of the Athletic Association.

The avowed purpose of the Athletic Association of Mary Baldwin College is "to plan and direct an athletic program that aims to establish in every student the habit of wholesome, physical recreation." Toward this end the Athletic Association plans for inter-class tournaments in hockey, basketball, baseball, track, and individual tournaments in golf, tennis, archery, deck tennis, ping pong, bowling, and billiards. The Riding Club which is an integral part of the Athletic Association sponsors an annual horse show during the spring with the usual competitive features. Silver loving cups are awarded to the winning class teams in the four major sports and to the individual champions in golf, tennis, archery, and riding. Another cup is given to the class having the largest number of points for participation in all sports. Monograms of Mary Baldwin College are presented to students who have made 650 points throughout the year under the individual point system of the Athletic Association, grading activity in sports. The most important award is the Mary Baldwin seal-sweater won by the girl chosen through popular vote as the best sport in the college.

The organization of the Athletic Association provides for an executive council elected from the student body. The Athletic Council includes the officers of the association: president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer; and the sport leaders for hockey, basketball, track, walking, tennis, baseball, swimming, golf, riding. The responsibility of every leader and of the council as a whole is to plan an athletic schedule which will interest the students in every sport possible.

Included in the major activities of the Athletic Council is the picnic given at the farm on the second Saturday after the opening of school. This affords an excellent opportunity for both new and old girls to become acquainted and to introduce the Athletic Association to the new-comers.

Classes in Life Saving are arranged. A health day program is an annual project of the Athletic Council. On this day chapel exercises are in charge of the hygiene classes. Prizes are offered for the best posters on the subject of health and in the evening a posture parade is held in the chapel with each organization entering a representative. At this time judges choose the girl with the best posture and she is awarded a silver cup. During examination week the Athletic Association outlines a special program to encourage the student to take the proper amount of physical exercise. During the year the Association is responsible for fire drills. The Athletic Banquet held in the late spring climaxes the year's work of the Association. At this time all the awards for the year are announced and the new Athletic Council is installed. A program is presented by the retiring officers.

During the season 1933-34 the Sophomore class won the hockey tournament; Grace Sager, '37, the tennis championship; Frances Holst, '37, the golf championship; Helen Holst, '36, Ping Pong; Janet Holley, '37, billiards; Jacqueline Crinkley, '34, Bowling; and Anne Rudd, '35, best posture.

Student Government

On October 23, 1929, a ceremony took place which has had great significance for every girl who has come to Mary Baldwin College since that day: the signing of the Student Government pledge by its charter members, the student body of 1929-1930. Based on the principles of honor and coöperation and the responsibilities of self-regulation and self-government, student government proved to be a radical departure from anything ever known before at Mary Baldwin. The next year presented a difficult task to the new Student Government—that of assimilating the largest freshman class ever before known at Mary Baldwin, but by carrying its fundamental principles into every realm of student life, student government attained a unity of thought in the student body. During 1931-1932 the emphasis was placed on the values of Student Government to its members in developing the foresight and tolerance necessary to overcome the problems attendant on community living anywhere. Last year, stress was laid on the position which every member of the association held as one of a group working toward the goal of a successfully functioning government. Throughout the present year the attempt has been made to show that student government is not a form imposed on a student body but that it is rather the happy norm of living in a college community.

Each succeeding year has emphasized different phases of student government but throughout each interpretation the underlying principles have remained the basic ones of honor and coöperation. Student Government has made a great contribution to Mary Baldwin, and with its continued reinterpretations and new emphases, based on the fundamental ideals of the past, it will become undoubtedly an even greater source of happiness and concord in student life in the coming years. That, at least, is the wish the present Student Government leaves to the future.

The Presidents' Forum has a unique place among Mary Baldwin's extra-curricula activities, for it binds all the other organizations together. Its members are the President of the College, the Dean, and various student presidents and editors. It is here that they may discuss and find help for the problems of her own organization, and it is here that the larger and more collective extra-curricula activities are formulated. This year the Presidents' Forum sponsored several new projects, among which were a series of dinners to celebrate the birthdays in each month, the serving of after dinner coffee, and publicity campaigns for various student events. The Presidents' Forum is indispensable for coordinating the different groups, setting the school spirit, and planning the larger student projects.

The Y. W. C. A. is one of the most active and important organizations on the campus. Its purpose is to lead its members to the four-fold life where all sides of one's personality are developed: mental, physical, social, and spiritual.

At the beginning of the scholastic year a beautiful candle-light Recognition Service is held for all those students who have accepted the invitation to join the Association, and throughout the year two services are conducted weekly: the Sunday Evening Vesper Service and the Thursday Evening Watch Service. The World Fellowship Group meets every Friday to discuss world problems and affairs.

The Y. W. interests itself in the social life of the students and sponsors several parties during the year. It also sends gifts of food, clothes, and money to needy families, and sponsors visits to the Virginia School for the Deaf and Blind and the Old Ladies' Home.

The year 1933-'34 has been a profitable and successful one for the Mary Baldwin Art Club. The group was even larger than in previous years, and its activities were both interesting and valuable.

Membership in the organization is open to anyone interested in art. The purpose of the club is to stimulate interest in art and to further the members' artistic knowledge. To this end, monthly meetings were held during the past year in which costume designing and interior decoration were studied. In addition an exhibit and lecture combined were held early in December for the benefit of the student body. Included in the exhibit were lithographs, wood blocks prints, Hopi Indian pottery, reproductions of famous oil and water color paintings, original manuscripts and tapestries, some of which were on sale. In addition to the regular monthly meetings, the entire Three Arts Club was entertained twice by the Art Club.

The Music Club, which was founded at Mary Baldwin in 1928, is one of the school's most active and outstanding organizations. Its purpose is to increase the understanding of and appreciation for good music among its members.

This year the study program of the club has been to trace the development of music forms from the sixteenth century up to the present day, and in this connection to consider the lives of the most outstanding composers.

In February the Music Club sponsored an organ recital by R. Deane Shure entitled "Through Palestine," and in April a concert by the Hampden-Sydney Glee Club and orchestra.

The Dramatic Club was founded in order to provide an organization for stimulating and developing dramatic activity of all kinds: acting, the technical side of play production, and play writing. Membership is open to all students interested in dramatic work.

There are two major productions during the year. One is given for the benefit of the students alone, while the other is open to the public. Participation in these presentations is limited to members of the club.

In February of this year, the annual production for the college was in the form of three one-act plays, including "About Face" by Phoebe Hoffman; "Pierrot Before the Seven Doors" by Arthur Cantillon; and "Thank You, Doctor" by Gilbert Emery. On May 5, "The Great Broxopp," a four-act play by A. A. Milne, was presented.

The Debating Club was founded in 1930 by Mrs. Thomas H. Grafton as an auxiliary to the debating class. The club has since come more definitely to sponsor the stimulation of interest in subjects of world importance, the advancement of public speaking, and the formation of contacts with other colleges.

Besides the debates and discussions held in regular meetings of the club, an inter-collegiate debate schedule this year included meetings with four Virginia colleges. Varsity debaters are chosen from the club membership by try-outs judged by a faculty committee.

To open the season Barbara Jett and Marian Nester successfully defended the affirmative side of the question: "Resolved, that the powers of the President of the United States should be increased as a permanent policy" against a team from the State Teachers College at Harrisonburg. March 17, Mary Bell Archer and Nancy Wallace, debating the negative of the same question, defeated the representatives of Hampden-Sidney College here. Miss Archer and Miss Wallace debated later in the spring at Radford State Teachers College, again winning the decision.

The affirmative of the proposition: "Resolved, that the principles of the N. R. A. should be continued indefinitely after its use as a relief measure has expired" was upheld by Frances Woolford and Ruth Laue, who defeated a team of girls from William and Mary.

The Mary Baldwin Glee Club is an organization which strives not only to develop a broad scope of understanding and appreciation for music among its members, but also to stimulate musical interest in others through its varied programs. To become familiar with the classics, from the earliest madrigals through the classic, romantic, and modern schools of music, is the aim of every member.

During the past year the Glee Club has taken an active part in chapel and Music Club programs and at frequent intervals has cooperated with the Y. W. C. A. in its Sunday Vesper Services. A Christmas Cantata, a concert of sacred music in Harrisonburg, and the formal Spring Concert at Commencement were important among the programs given this year.

The participation of the Glee Club in the Brabms Requiem at the Virginia Music Festival held in Charlottesville the last of April was, however, by far the greatest event of the year. Dr. Tertius Noble, well known English organist and conductor and organist of St. Thomas Church in New York, conducted the chorus of one thousand voices, and artist soloists sang the leading rôles.

The Psychology Club, founded in 1926, has filled a very definite place in the life of the college. Membership is restricted to advanced students in psychology and education and to those students in general psychology who attain a high scholastic standing.

The aim of the club is that of arousing and maintaining an interest in all aspects of mental life. The topics considered at its meetings vary greatly from time to time, but they invariably deal with some phase of the application of psychology to practical problems in everyday life.

This year the psychology Club has had Mr. William H. Hinton, Assistant Professor of Psychology, Washington and Lee University, and Dr. Thomas H. Grafton of the Mary Baldwin faculty among its guest speakers. One program was devoted to a study of some of the experimental methods used at the Virginia State School for the Deaf and Blind, and a number of the students of this institution were guests of the Psychology Club.

All students taking advanced French are member of Le Cercle Français. The purpose of the club is to help the students speak French more fluently and to increase their interest in the political, social, and cultural life of France, both as it was in the past and as it is today.

Meetings are held twice a month and are of varied interest, the programs consisting of plays, games, informal discussions, stories, anecdotes, and sometimes special French music. At the Christmas meeting the club followed the old French custom of leaving their shoes by the fire-place and returning to find them filled with presents.

Miss Jeanne-Renee Campana, Foreign Exchange student from France, has been a great asset to Le Cercle Français this year in giving the members a truer picture of the spirit and atmosphere of everyday life in her country.

Golf at Mary Baldwin has always been under the direction of the Athletic Council. The elected leader of this sport automatically becomes president of the club.

The Gypsy Hill Golf Course and the Stonewall Jackson Country Club are used as Mary Baldwin's official courses. Each year two tournaments are organized and played here. To the winner of the spring tournament the Athletic Association awards a silver loving cup. (This remains at the college.)

This year the president of the club was responsible for securing a cup for the winner of the fall tournament. This cup was donated by Mrs. T. C. Miller and was awarded to Frances Holst.

The 1933-34 club is the largest in the history of golf at Mary Baldwin. Through the able direction of the club sponsor, Miss Powell, and the club officers, golf is no longer in the class of minor sports but is one of Mary Baldwin's leading sports.

The Riding Club has spent an active year with its twenty members undaunted by the spills which certain of them have suffered. Riding parties have hit the trail every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday with Sarah Dyess and Frances Woolford as chaperons, giving lessons and soothing the newly initiated with commendable patience.

Among the projects of the club this year was the riding picnic on September 30, and during the winter the sleigh rides over the snowy hills behind a long-suffering horse.

The main event of the year, the Horse Show, was scheduled for May 5. This is always an occasion of great interest for the entire college, particularly since the winner of the cup for the best rider automatically becomes a member of the Athletic Council. Then the annual Riding Club banquet came. Final events on the club's calendar showed plans for strawrides and picnics.

The Granddaughters' Club of Mary Baldwin is an honorary group, composed of students whose mother or grandmother attended school here. Dr. Elizabeth Juanita Greer, councilor and advisor of the club, is herself a granddaughter.

The rich heritage of cultural traditions which has been passed on to them from generation unto generation is zealously guarded by the members of this club. It is their privilege to know intimately the ideals upon which Mary Baldwin College is founded and the standards which it has always supported, and it is their trust to pass this knowledge on to the present generation of students.

The mother of some, the grandmother of some, and both the grandmother and mother of still others helped build the institution of which their granddaughters are so justly proud and to which they hope to add still greater honor.

This year, Margaret Bailey, the granddaughter of Rev. Rufus W. Bailey, founder of Augusta Female Seminary, is an honorary member of the club.

The Day Student Club was founded in September, 1929. Miss Fannie Strauss, who had been a day student herself at Mary Baldwin, was chosen as sponsor. The club was established to foster the particular interests of the day students. Two rooms in the college are set aside for their use and convenience.

Both the college and the club strive to make the members an integral part of the student body. The day students take an active part in all phases of college life and are represented on the Student Council.

Regular meetings are scheduled for once a month and these often take the form of a social affair. The two outstanding events sponsored by the club this year were the Faculty-Student Supper and a tea given for the graduates of the Staunton High Schools.

The Mary Baldwin Honor Society

In 1932 the faculty established a society to be known as the Mary Baldwin Honor society. Membership to this organization is conditioned primarily upon scholarship and is regarded as a recognition of ability well employed. The members are elected by the faculty twice a year from the Junior and Senior classes.

The essential purpose of the Mary Baldwin Honor society is then to encourage and foster scholarship. But by scholarship, is meant not only the search for the acquisition of what others have called truth but also, after a careful consideration of its validity, the rejection of what proves false and the assimilation of only the true. One's ideals of scholarship should be of such a nature that one may partake more wholesomely and more abundantly of life instead of withdrawing in cloistered seclusion and wasting effort in the contemplation of meaningless abstractions. So election to the Mary Baldwin Honor Society is recognition not only of excellence and leadership in academic pursuits but in all the activities of college life.

In this way, membership in The Mary Baldwin Society is a challenge to the initiates. The student whom the Honor Society desires, feels not so much pride in the recognition but responsibility to make a worth-while contribution to the common life.

hockey field, in the class-room, or on the platform; of prayers together; of mutual hopes and aspirations; of confidences after lights are out; of intimate friendships formed here.

But the editors of THE BLUESTOCKING can set down in black and white a picture or a word which later may call up in your mind the memories of these things which speech cannot relate, but which are the bonds, the realities that make college life worth while. In after years this annual should make your recollections more vivid, more real, for as you turn its pages, a pictured face will take on for you perhaps a well-remembered smile or a familiar dimple. The work of the staff will not have been in vain if this memory book which we have made for you becomes thus a living, breathing thing—the stuff for dreams of the past, dreams which shall last “not just for time, but for eternity.”

The Miscellany publishes Mary Baldwin's literary contributions. Stories, sketches, poems, essays, book reviews, plays—any type of material is welcomed, and from any of the girls. An effort is made to keep the literary standard as high as possible, so that good literature may be created and enjoyed here at school.

The staff of the magazine is representative of the whole college. The Editor-in-Chief, Assistant Editor, Business Manager, and Assistant Business Manager are elected by the student body, and these officers choose the other members of the staff. Due to their hard work and the coöperation of the girls, art work was introduced into the Miscellany this year, and enough literary material was submitted to make four issues possible—one in November, December, March, and May.

Campus Comments is the Mary Baldwin newspaper. At the beginning of this school year, it underwent several rather radical changes in so far as its make-up was concerned. It was enlarged to seven columns, and every effort was put forth to make it as much like a regular newspaper as possible. It became a weekly instead of a bi-weekly publication. Thus it was hoped that Campus Comments would present a more representative picture of college life and would better reflect the thoughts, the feelings, and the activities of the entire student body. Because of these changes it was necessary to increase the size of the staff. The class in journalism does a great deal of the work on the paper, but all the members of the staff are not selected from this class.

Explanation of Theme

In choosing a theme for THE 1934 BLUESTOCKING it was very natural that the staff should select Great Women of The Ages not only because Mary Baldwin College is an educational institution for women but also because it is a monument to the great woman whose name it bears and who devoted to it nearly half a century of earnest, faithful, and successful labor. Numerous considerations have determined the method for expanding this idea.

First of all, the outstanding women who introduce the six divisions of the book have been chosen from such periods as will allow a chronological sequence and for such personalities as will permit at least a slight relationship between their activities and the sections which they head. For example, Queen Elizabeth as a type of great executive has been selected for the section concerned with the college organizations. No pretense has been made to enumerate or to acknowledge all the great women of history, but rather a representative group has been dealt with, hoping that by the very contrasting features of their characters they will be able to stand for their exceptional sisters who could not be included.

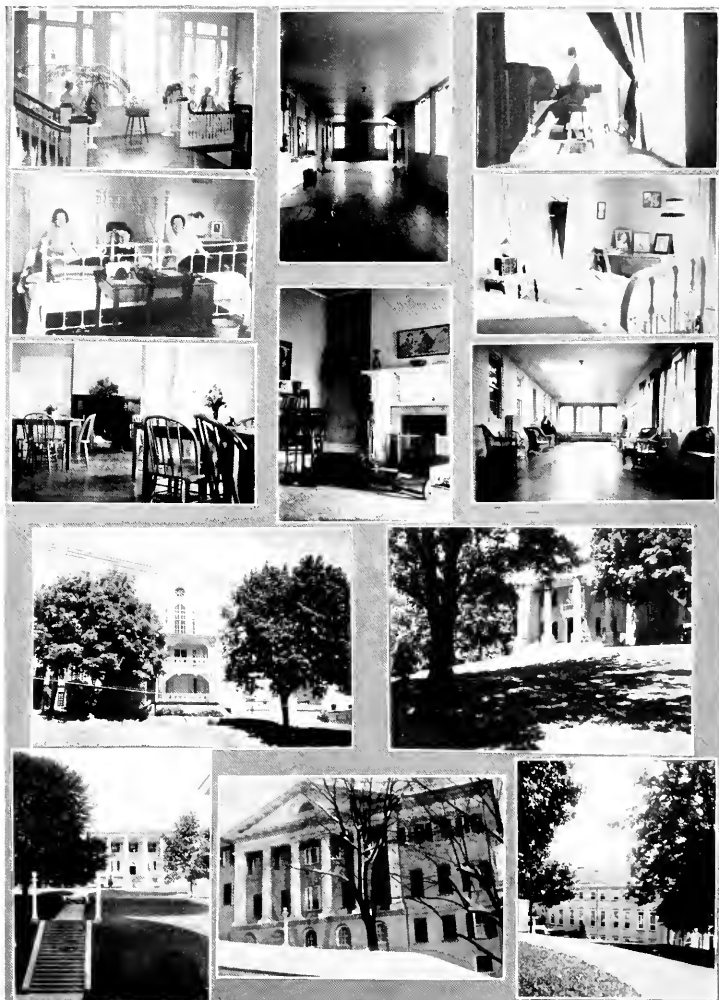

Secondly, green was used as the predominant color of THE BLUESTOCKING since green and white are the official colors of its publishers, the Junior Class. The triangle has been employed in the design as a symbol of strength and sturdiness and of growth and high aspirations.

Thirdly, an attempt was made to link the feature section with the theme of the book. Toward this end, we secured the assistance of Mrs. L. Wilson Jarman and Dean Elizabeth Pfohl, who chose for us six qualities necessary to a great woman. Then using these as a standard, six girls were elected by student nomination and faculty-student decision, each of whom has displayed to a marked degree in her college life one of the essential characteristics.

Lastly, for the sake of originality and also economy of art work in view of the small art staff, photographs were used for the division pages. The students representing the famous women were chosen by the staff from the Junior Class for their appearance, and were costumed and posed in imitation of well-known portraits or descriptions of the characters. Obviously, the marginal drawings relate to the division in which they appear.

The impression portraits or word-miniatures of the Seniors replace the familiar quotations usually employed to give a glimpse at the individualities of these students.

ART in CLOTHES

Just as the famous Artists create successful pictures—so the famous designers continue to create successful styles—each day brings new ideas into the world of fashion—and each day brings these new fashions to the

PALAIS ROYAL

We do not guess—we do not mistake a fad for a fashion—we bow low to the great god—GOOD TASTE—and our clothes are selected with an accurate knowledge of for whom, for when, and for where.

PALAIS ROYAL clothes are the unusual kind—Beautiful—Smart—Individual in style,—Always reflecting good taste—NEVER overdone.

*The ART of being "Well Dressed" is always assured when wearing Palais

Play Safe and Be Satisfied

The garments you value are worth insurance against incorrect methods of cleaning. The National Association of Dyers and Cleaners, together with the Federal Trade Commission, has set certain standards of quality and handling that protect you—the customer.

These methods have been whole-heartedly endorsed by WOODWARD'S, and every rule is a standard practice in OUR plant. We believe they reflect a desire to meet the responsibility you EXPECT of your cleaner. Your problems are OUR problems.

Experience

LYNCHBURG ENGRAVED ANNUALS ARE BUILT UPON YEARS OF EXPERIENCE
AS SPECIALISTS IN THE FIELD OF SCHOOL PUBLICATIONS

IN successfully fulfilling the requirements of the modern College Annual Staff we have combined a comprehensive and systematic servicing program with that high standard of quality so essential in the production of fine yearbooks. Lynchburg engraved annuals are built by an organization specializing on school annuals exclusively, thereby assuring each staff of the personal and intelligent assistance so necessary in the planning and designing of a truly satisfactory book.

Builders of Better Annuals

We Congratulate...

The Editor and staff of the BLUESTOCKING on the results of their efforts in presenting to you this Year Book. Did you realize as you leafed through its pages the work, both mental and physical, spent in its making? Did you pause, if only for a moment, to try to solve the question, how was this book made? Did you know that it was all compiled first in the minds of the staff, a small piece at a time until it was completed? Did you know that we took these mental pieces of creative imagination and gave them to you in concrete form.

We trust our years of training in the Annual field has enabled us to be of some assistance to the staff and that we have given you a book of which you will be proud to claim as a true representative of your school. If this be true, then our work has been well done.
